If any devastations be committed in the territory of the god, if any shall be privy to such offence, or entertain any design against the temple, I will use my hands, my feet, my whole force, to bring the offending party to condign punishment An awful imprecation was What remains from ancient authors upon the subject has been largely collected by Dean Prideaux in his treatise on the Oxford Marbles, and Dr. Leland, in the preliminary Discourse to his History of Philip king of Macedonia, has added what has been imagined by modern writers. In the sequel of this history occasion will occur to notice the connection of the Amphictyonic council with the political interests of the country, as they arise; whence illustration, still imperfect, yet perhaps the best to be...
