(See Cook on Corporations, Sections 291-8.) 33. What is a joint stock company? In what ways can it be compared with (a) a partnership, (b) an incorporated company? Answer. The Cyclopedia of Law and Procedure defines a joint stock company as follows: A joint stock company is an association of individuals for purposes of profit, possessing a common capital contributed by the members composing it, such capital being commonly divided into the shares, of which each member possesses one or more, and which are transferable by the owner. (For a history of joint stock companies, see 5 Albany Law Journal 19.) The distinction between a joint stock company and a partnership, and between a joint stock company and an incorporated company, is indicated in answer to question 11. 34. Define treasury stock. What effect has the term fully paid and non-assessable, written upon a stock certificate, in respect to the liability of stockholders to creditors of the company? Explain. Answer. Treasury stock is sometimes used to indicate stock which has not been issued, but the weight of authority is to the effect that treasury stock is stock which has been issued and finds its way back to the treasury of the company through purchase, gift, forfeiture or otherwise. For the answer...
