Not illustrated. 1856 edition. Excerpt: .writings of the Early Church have come down to us, either in substance or traditionally, we may find an answer to the question in the fate of the autographs of the gospels and epistles, written by the hands of men around whose brows from that time to this the Church has delighted to entwine the halo of sanctity. This is an age which, perhaps more than any other, can estimate the value of relics of the past, especially when associated with historical renown, high mental attainments, or eminent writers; and our eagerness to become possessors of but a few words written by our poets or heroes, will at once indicate to us the priceless worth of an autograph epistle of St. John or St. Paul. An historian of the Library of the Vatican, tells us that St. Peter, when he would set up the see...
